Best Practices for Meeting with Congress

- Appropriations chaos kicks off the year
 - Fiscal Year 2024 funding delayed; 6/12 bills currently passed
 - President's Fiscal Year 2025 budget published on 3/11
 - Working within budget caps for FY24 and FY25
- Presidential election on the horizon
 - Congress will be on recess for all of August and October
 - Members constantly thinking about how their actions could impact their chances for re-election
- Top of mind: Foreign aid and border policies
 - High-stakes negotiations around aid for Ukraine, Israel, Taiwan, etc. and funding for border policy enforcement

Appropriations: Expectation

Appropriations: Reality

- The last time Congress passed all appropriations bills on time was in the 1990s.
- When appropriations are delayed, we either get:
 - Continuing Resolutions (common) – temporarily extends funding from the previous fiscal year
 - Government Shutdowns (rare) – government agencies do not have the funding to continue operating

Congress rarely passes spending legislation on time

Bipartisan Tax Package

- In late January, the House passed a bipartisan tax package that includes measures to expand the Low-Income Housing Tax Credit (LIHTC)
 - Tax Relief for American Families and Workers Act
- If passed, the measures are estimated to produce an additional 200,000 units of affordable housing.
- Urge your Senators to support the LIHTC provisions in the tax package.
- Urge all your members of Congress to co-sponsor the Affordable Housing Credit Improvement Act

Things to Know about Member Offices and the US Capitol Campus

- You may enter House and Senate Office buildings freely upon passing a metal detector.
- Capitol Police are a great resource for finding your way.
- In-person meetings generally last about 15-30 minutes.
- Congressional offices vary in size based on the seniority of the member – this is important to account for when determining the size of your group.
- If you require a wheelchair or accessibility services, reach out to the office you're visiting ahead of Hill Day.

House Office Buildings

Researching the Member

- You can start by looking up the website for your member of Congress.
 - Their websites usually contain their personal biographies, a map of their district, policy stances, archived press releases, etc.
- Referencing parts of a member's biography, especially a shared connection you may have, shows that you have done your research and can help establish a relationship.
- Learn more about the members' committee assignments and work they've done that may relate to affordable housing and community development.

Crafting Your Message

- Planning out your talking points with your group in advance is important to maximize the limited time you will have with the office.
- Your requests should be specific and within the power of the office you're in (i.e., supporting specific legislation)
- Providing the member or staff with NAHRO's Policy Priorities and Legislative & Regulatory can help make sure everyone remembers key points raised in your meeting.

NAHRO 2024 Policy Priorities

“We want adequate and responsible funding that provides housing and community development agencies the ability to implement holistic and equitable approaches to community development as well as build and preserve affordable units through streamlined programs that allow for creative, local solutions.”

Considering Your Team

- It is important to have a diversity of voices on the issues.
- Plan out who will lead the meeting and who will cover which talking points so there is no uncertainty or overlapping speakers.
- Your Capitol Hill Day will take place while Congress is “in session,” meaning a busy office will be juggling meetings, sometimes at competing times.
- Flexibility will be appreciated and remembered by staffers and will help build long-term partnerships with them.

Like any first meeting, you'll need to introduce yourselves. Provide enough information but stay mindful of time.

Thank the member or staffer for meeting with you.

Do your best to make it through all the points of your message, but don't be afraid to pause.

If you do not know something, politely say that you're unsure and you will follow up.

You can end the meeting on a positive note by asking if the group could take a picture.

NAHRO

building communities together

STRUCTURING YOUR VISIT

Capitol Hill Day Follow Up

- Always send a follow-up email thanking the member and staff for meeting with you.
- Make sure to include any information or resources you promised to send after the meeting.
- If there are any events in your area that may be relevant to the topics discussed at your meeting, invite the member and their relevant staff.
- Invite the member to visit your agency when they are in the district!
